PRESIDENTIAL VIEW

A picture of my friend Doug appeared on the editorial page of the Times News Dispatch a few months ago. Along with his picture was a brief write up as to how Doug had tried to make Richmond a very desirable destination for tourists. In that Doug owns his own small advertising firm, he spent years coming up with slogans and promotions touting Richmond as the most historical city in America. No matter what he did, the notion never caught on with the mayor, city council, economic development people, actually no one.

Now Doug has the idea that we can sell Richmond as the most creative city in America. My point is very simple. Doug has left a lasting legacy on everyone that his passion about Richmond will never die. Long after Doug goes to his eternal reward, his legacy will live on.

We have many folks in our club who have left a legacy of their own. Things that will live on long after they are no longer with us. Just being a member of a service organization tells the world that you care about things beyond yourself. My challenge to all of us is to use this time of your life to leave a lasting memory that reflects your passion. The world will be better for it, and so will the club.
